What is a Disability – What’s in a label?

Disability “as umbrella term, covering impairments, activity limitations and participation restrictions”

Impairment is a problem in body function or structure as a result of an injury, disease or other disorder producing a reduction in physical or mental ability and activity”

Handicap is “an environment or social barrier that limits an individual from fully participating in everyday activities”

An Example: A spinal cord damaged in an injury (IMPAIRMENT) results in the loss of movement to the lower limbs (DISABILITY), producing the inability to walk up a set of stairs (HANDICAP)
Models of Disability

- Personal Tragedy/Charity Model
- Medical Model
- Social Model of Disability
Personal Tragedy/ Charity Model of Disability

- Brave, courageous, inspirational

- Person with a Disability = Problem

- To be pitied
- Need to be looked after

- Need help/charity/sympathy
- Sad and tragic

Alberta Committee of Citizens with Disabilities
Medical Model of Disability

The Medical Model of Disability

The two main groups to think about are:
Impairment – your problem!

Disability – your problem!

The Social Model of Disability

There are two main groups to think about in this model too.
Impairment – is part of me.

Disability – is society's problem.

Using the Social Model all disabled people have a right to be a part of society.

Society needs to change, not disabled people.

Myths and Assumptions

What is a myth?
A Myth is a popular belief or story that has become associated with a person, institution or occurrence. Something that we think is true.

What is an assumption?
The act of taking for granted: assumption of a false theory. Something taken for granted or accepted as true without proof.
Recognize the difference between the following

-a FACT about the disability
-a GENERALIZATION based on personal experience with someone who has a disability (Taking something specific and applying it more broadly)
-a STEREOTYPE held to be true about the disability (a widely held but fixed and oversimplified image or idea of a particular type of person or thing)
Important points to remember which may help in our attempt to not react to disabilities but to respond to the people who have disabilities. We often make decisions or come to conclusions based on what we don’t know or what we think we know about disabilities. There are problems with this:

- Any two people with the same disability will have differences in how the disability has affected their lives.
- Much of what we think we know about a disability is out-dated or incorrect.
- With no information, we tend to imagine a worst-case scenario or assume that the person has the highest level of the disabling condition.
- There is a tremendous range within each category of disability in terms of the nature, the extent and the effect of the disability on the person.
Top 5 Things to Consider

Ask before you help: People want to be independent and treated with respect

Be Sensitive about Physical Contact: People depend on their arms for balance, consider equipment part of their personal space

Think before you speak: Speak directly to the person

Don’t make assumptions: People are the best judge of what they can and cannot do

Respond graciously to requests: An accommodation is not a complaint
